

ABOUT BRIE

BRIE@MAXBROOCK.COM

Michigan has always been my home. My childhood was spent in Birmingham, and that's where my husband and I are raising our family.

After working in retail management for over twenty years, I fell in love with the idea of supporting our community's success and starting my own business and became a realtor in 2018. This transition afforded me the flexibility of supporting my family's needs while growing a business in which my children might someday play a part.

My expertise includes property discovery, staging, and creating marketing strategies that will attract buyers and close the sale. It's been an honor to have helped so many families buy and sell their homes all over metro Detroit. The best praise I can receive from clients is their recommendation to others that I am "an honest, transparent, professional, and personable realtor". It makes me proud that I have earned that kind of confidence in my abilities because being trusted to help people with their largest financial transactions is what makes me proud and drives everything I do!

It's my commitment that I will always work hard for my clients and utilize my expertise, energy, and enthusiasm to go above and beyond in ensuring my clients' real estate goals are met. This commitment and ongoing continuing education have earned me both the Accredited Buyer's Representative (ABR) and the Seller Representative Specialist (SRS).

And with great pride, I also serve as President of the Women's Council of Realtors Birmingham Bloomfield. When I'm not helping people buy and sell their homes, I am a devoted (and busy!) soccer and football mom to my two children.
